RECOMMENDS DEVELOPMENT OF THE MERRIMACK RIVER

Report of Atlantic Deeper Waterways Association Favors
Deepening of River Channel—Hope Expressed That Federal and State Governments Will Co-operate

Lowell's long-continued, faithful support of the so-called but progressive movement generally recommended by the board of representative legislators and many leaders of New England's commerce and manufacturing industries, to extend navigation on the Merrimack river from the sea to the important groups of industrial cities in this section of Massachusetts, may yet be crowned with success. Even beyond the dreams of present-day optimists still flourishing in the Spindle City in spite of trifling odds.

Today, Secretary-Manager George P. Wells received a ray of sunshine apart from the flood provided for the past thirty-two days by Old Sol. It was an official report direct from executives of the Atlantic Deeper Waterways association, who recently held their seventeenth annual convention in Newark, N. J., the statement covering in full and with much detail, results and recommendations approved in connection with many problems relating to the enlargement of the nation's inland waterways. The document consists of 14 pages, enclosed in heavy book paper.

POLITICAL FORUM AT AUDITORIUM TO WIND UP CAMPAIGN

Candidates for Office at Tomorrow's City Primaries to Get in Last Licks Tonight—58 Names on Ballot—Polls
Open From 10 A. M. to 8 P. M.

A political forum, in the Auditorium tonight, arranged by the board of trustees for the purpose of allowing all candidates for office to present their qualifications for votes before the electorate, the municipal primary campaign will reach its climax. Several candidates will appear on street corners later in the evening, but for the big majority, the Auditorium meeting will wind up the campaign.

The trustees have allotted each speaker a definite time of appearance, with the stipulation that majority candidates each will be allowed six minutes and all others, three minutes each. There will be approximately 36 speakers, including the nine minority aspirants.

Indications for tomorrow's election are for fair weather, and it is expected, although it is not expected to bulk much greater than 21,000, or between 75 and 80 per cent. of the registration. With 53 candidates in the field, interest is wide-spread and this may possibly result in a larger poll than predicted. There are nine majority candidates, 39 for councilor-at-large and 10 for school committee. No ward councilors are to be chosen this year.

All present office holders from the city will be present.

DEATH IN TEWKSBURY OF MRS. JOHN J. SULLIVAN

Mrs. Maud L. (Gillispie) Sullivan, wife of John J. Sullivan, local tailor, died this morning at her home in North Tewksbury, as a direct result of being thrown from her saddle-horse about three weeks ago, when she sustained severe head injuries and shock. For a time after the accident it was not believed her injuries would prove fatal, but during the past few days she weakened perceptibly and specialists were called in without avail. Of charming personality she enjoyed the friendship of many people and annually was prominently identified with a number of social and charitable events.

Besides her husband she leaves her daughter, Jane Gillespie, a brother, John T. Gillespie of New York, and four sisters, Mrs. Clarence C. Cunningham, Mrs. Owen A. Gilday, Mrs. Joseph Smith and Mrs. Percy Redmond.

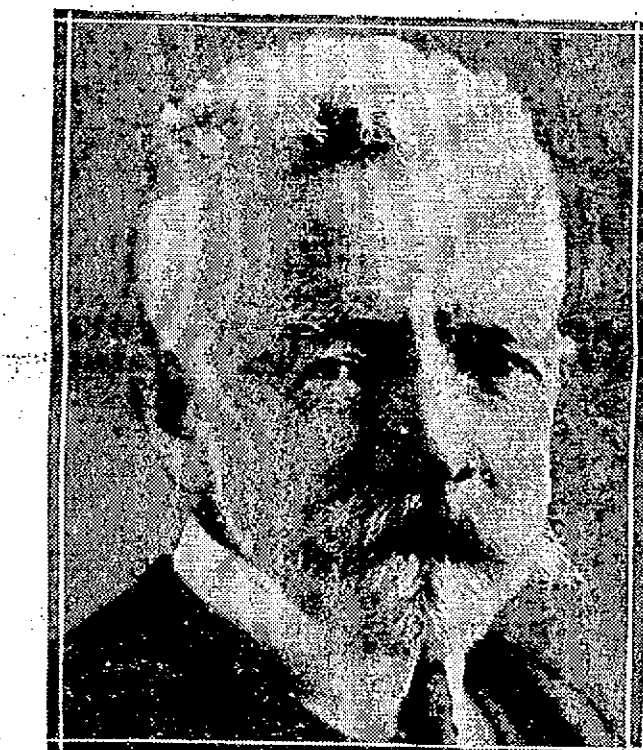

SUNDAY'S FIRE ALARMS
A telephone alarm at 2:57 yesterday morning was for a brush fire off Mammoth road near the end of the car line. Box 43 at 3:15 p. m. was for a slight blaze in the Fair Grounds dump, and a telephone alarm at 5:27 p. m. was for a partition fire at 2 Horn street. The latter blaze was slight and was quickly extinguished.

FUNERAL SERVICES FOR SEN. LODGE WILL BE HELD WEDNESDAY

HENRY CABOT LODGE

Illustrious Senior Senator of Massachusetts Died Last Night After Fight for Life That Surprised Doctors— Will Be Buried in Mount Auburn Cemetery, Cambridge

CAMBRIDGE, Nov. 10.—Funeral services for United States Senator Henry Cabot Lodge, who died at the Charles Gate hospital here late last night after a fight for life that surprised the doctors, will be held Wednesday at Christ church, Cambridge, probably at noon. It was decided by his family today. As he will be buried in the Lodge family lot at Mount Auburn cemetery, Cambridge will have been the scene of his death, the funeral services and of interment, although his long career in public life brought him back only occasionally in recent years to the scenes here of his college days at Harvard.

Struck down last Wednesday, just as he was making a rapid convalescence from his second operation within a few months, the 74-year-old senator was unconscious during most of the days intervening before his death. For a brief period on Friday.

NATIONAL GUARD TROOPS CALLED

Rushed to Dix River Dam in Mercer County, Ky., Following
Race Riot

Clubs, Sticks, Pistols, Shotguns and Other Weapons
Used by Whites

FRANKFORT, Ky., Nov. 10.—National guard troops were hurriedly sent to the Dix river dam in Mercer county, about 25 miles southeast of Frankfort early today when reports of race rioting reached the adjutant-general's office here. The trouble is believed to have started last night of Edward Winkle, a farm worker. Winkle was shot to death by a negro called "Jolly Roll," peace officers were informed.

A despatch from Lexington today told of the arrival there of 19 negroes from a Dix river construction camp. All of them said they had been driven from the camp by a mob of farmers, white laborers and others armed with clubs, sticks, pistols, shotguns and other weapons.

YOUTH Fatally Shot

HARRODSBURG, Kentucky, Nov. 10. Armed white workmen drove out approximately 500 negroes from the construction camp of the Dix river dam, eight miles from here, last night after Edward Winkle, 18, a bridegroom of a few days, had been fatally shot by negro highwaymen.

DROUTH RECORD BROKEN

Water in Merrimack River
Abnormally Low For This Season of the Year

Local Industries Obligated to Change Over to Their Emergency Equipment

The Merrimack river is breaking a few October-November drouth record too.

Locks and Canals proprietors announced this morning that the volume flow of river waters downward from New Hampshire is abnormally small for this season of the year.

Official measurements show that only 1200 cubic feet a second are flowing over Pawtucket dam today, as compared with the average number of 5000 cubic feet measured when river waters are coming down from the northern watersheds in normal volume.

The lowering of the Merrimack waters has been going on steadily for the past two weeks. The early stages of the present drouth, did not perceptibly affect the fall volume of water.

CHARGE ASSAULT WITH INTENT TO COMMIT MURDER

Thomas Faustino and George D. Hogan on Trial in East Cambridge Court in Connection With Shooting of Fred H. Peabody, Lowell Milkman

THOMAS FAUSTINO

GEORGE D. HOGAN

Thomas Faustino and George D. Hogan, recently indicted by the grand jury on the charge of assault to commit murder on Fred H. Peabody, local milk dealer, went to trial in superior court in East Cambridge this morning. The Lowell police department was represented by Captain David Petrie and Sergeant Philip Dwyer.

Faustino and Hogan are alleged to have held up Peabody at his home in Stevens street early last September, one of them, said to be Faustino, firing a shot at Mr. Peabody which nearly cost him his life.

ARREST MADE IN TRAVERS CASE

Carl Holloway of Twin Mountain, N. H., Held in Connection With Murder

Body of Travers Found in Mill Pond, Weighted
Down by Logs

LYNN, Mass., Nov. 10.—Carl Holloway, of Twin Mountain, N. H., arrested at a lodging-house here early today, was described as a "fugitive from justice in New Hampshire in connection with the murder of James J. Travers of Whitefield, N. H., on Nov. 5."

It was the first time that New Hampshire authorities have officially declared that the death of Travers, whose body was found in a mill pond near his house, weighted down by logs, to be due to violence, although inquiries have been in progress a week.

Holloway who came here last night from Lunenburg, Vt., was described by County Solicitor Matthew J. Ryan of New Hampshire in his request for apprehension to the local police as "a bad actor with a long criminal record."

It was said that he fled from his home eight miles from Whitefield Friday night or Saturday morning.

Holloway protested that he knew nothing of Travers' death, and came here only to see his wife, Mrs. Marion Holloway, from whom he has been long separated. Mrs. Holloway was at the police station today saying she did not believe her husband could have had anything to do with the murder.

CITY PRIMARY TOMORROW

Polls will open at 10 a. m. and close at 8 p. m. During those ten hours there will be nominated two candidates for mayor, only two candidates for councilors-at-large, four candidates for the three-year term on the school committee and two candidates for the two-year term on the committee.

The ballot contains the names of nine majority candidates, 89 councilor candidates and 10 school board candidates.

To mark a ballot correctly voters must be cast for only one candidate for mayor, only six candidates for councilor, only two candidates for the three-year term on the school committee and only one candidate for the two-year term.

"Blanks" will result if fewer or more votes are cast than above described.

In marking primary election ballots it is imperative to bear in mind that although twice the number of candidates eventually to be elected will be nominated, an individual voter must confine himself to balloting for the number to be elected.

Two majority candidates for mayor will be nominated—vote only for one; 12 candidates will be nominated for the council—vote only for six, and so on in the other contests.

AMUSEMENT NOTES

(By The Theatre's Own Press Agents)
MERRIMACK SQUARE THEATRE
 Norman Kerry, popular leading man of film, performs a peculiar but familiar piece of villainy in the George Fitzmaurice production, "Which is Which," which is shown at Merrimack Square Theatre during the first part of the week.
 As a member of a law firm, Kerry feels that he is privileged to flirt with the stenographer. He no sooner tries his wiles on the young lady than she runs from him. In the love scenes from the adjoining room, it is a ticklish situation, but Kerry has a method of his own of getting out of tangling predicaments.
 The girl in the case is May McAvoy, and Ronald Colman is the ardent suitor. Other members in the cast of "Which is Which" include: "Tarnish," a First National picture, sponsored by Samuel Goldwyn, Inc., Marie Prevost, Harry Myers, Patricia Gannon, Albert Gran and Mrs. Russ Whytall.
 The companion attraction is "Hold Your Breath," and Al Christie comely feature, with a cast that includes Walter Hiers, Tully Marshall and Dorothy Doyne. A shorter comedy and the latest International News complete the bill.

B. F. KEITH'S THEATRE
 "A Hilarious What-Not," with Jack McAllen and Sarahs contributing the principal features, will headline the present week's bill at the B. F. Keith Theatre. It is a melange of singing, dancing, comedy and roller-skating. Danny Duggan, the unequalled exhibition dancer, will appear here during the week, giving his specialty arranged exhibition. He will be assisted by a woman expert and a xylophone. "Paget de Solo," in which William Edwards & Co. will appear, is a character comedy, with an Italian cobbler as the principal figure. Frank Richardson, the Jay Boy of song, will contribute to the bill, and Miss DeLacy and Mr. Williams will offer a sketch of Washington, D. C., called "Swankling." The Kismet Sisters in photographs bring many laughs. The week's picture feature will be "The Man Alone," with Robert Rosworth in the leading role.

THE ROYAL THEATRE
 In their initial appearance in Lowell at the Royal Theatre, two weeks ago, the famous Patent Leathers girls, a musical comedy company of eight people, did so well that the answer of many urgent requests for their re-appearance, the manager has decided to bring them back here for another two-day show. They are coming back with an entirely new repertoire of songs, dances and gags. It is an entirely new show, a new comedy theme, and it will introduce a number of excellent comedy material. There are three men and five girls in the company, and all are assigned special work in the comedy singing and dancing numbers. Solo dancing, quartets, ensembles are all part and parcel of the offerings, purveyed by this clever little company. This show is given in addition to the usual high class playhouse program, and for these two days the special attractions on the screen are "Slaves of Scandal," and H. B. Warner in a new western play, called "Dan-ger," a fast moving drama of action, love and romance. An episode of the Jack Dempsey serial, "Daredevil Jack," is also booked to be shown on Monday and Tuesday. Remember this big show is on tonight.
 Announcement is made by the management that "Monsieur Beaucaire," Rudolph Valentino's last play, which production is billed to appear for two days, on next Wednesday and Thursday at this theatre. An excellent comedy of Paramount stars surrounds the famous "perfect love" in this big, massive production.

LOWELL OPERA HOUSE
 When you see the Stanley James company in "Gone" at the Opera House next week you will see four of the funniest comedy roles ever presented to the theatregoing public. Seated to the left, Mrs. O'Hare, Irene's Madame Loo, and Irene's two girl friends, and for these two days the special attractions on the screen are "Slaves of Scandal," and H. B. Warner in a new western play, called "Dan-ger," a fast moving drama of action, love and romance. CARRY ON, FOR "BILL"

Others Push Cleanup in Which Cromwell Marshal Gave His Life

By N.E.A. Service
CROMWELL, Oct. 10.—"Uncle Bill" Higman's appeals for aid in cleaning up Cromwell, "wickedest town in the southwest," finally have been answered.

Federal and state agents have come in to finish the job. The picturesque old town of Cromwell, which was started here in this part of the old hickory two months ago.

But they have arrived too late for the fearless old man who spent more than half a century enforcing the law in other towns and booming oil camps.

For "Uncle Bill" is gone. He went down, with a bullet in his heart, while attempting to disarm a man creating a disturbance in front of the Murphy dance hall.

His finger was not as fast as it used to be and the other fellow had the drop on him. But "Uncle Bill" died just as he always had hoped he would. He was 71.

In his youth, "Higman" was a hunter on the plains of Kansas and Colorado. Then he became the marshal of Dodge City, Kan., when it was a rip-roaring cattle town and the rendezvous of the old west's hardest, toughest, and wildest drinking and straight-shooting men.

He moved over to Oklahoma when the territory was opened in 1893. For the next two years he was a deputy United States marshal. On this job he was given credit for capturing many notorious outlaws of Starr, Jennings and Doolin caliber.

In the early years of its statehood, he was a member of the Oklahoma senate. Afterward he was chief of police in Oklahoma City. But advancing civilization brought less need for the old-time gun-fighting men of the west, of which he was a typical, and old Bill dropped out of sight.

Came then the old strike at Cromwell and the rapid growth of a town of shacks, where every man multiplies his own law, and vice ruled everywhere.

Peaceable citizens of Cromwell determined their town must be a law-abiding community. They sent for "Uncle Bill."

Though he admitted his aim was not so steady as it used to be, he did not hesitate to take the task. Soon the bad men and evil painted women began an exodus from Cromwell. Then "Higman" was killed.

"Uncle Bill" is gone, but the work he began is being carried on.

EAGLES WILL DEDICATE
NEW HOME WEDNESDAY

Next Wednesday evening Lowell Aerie, Federal Order of Eagles, will dedicate their new home, the building in Gorham street which formerly housed Lincoln hall, with appropriate ceremony.

The entertainment program for the opening will consist of musical numbers and the feature event of the evening will be an address by Conrad H. Mann, financial advisor of the order.

The new home of the Eagles has been completely renovated during the past few months. The first floor is given over to stores, while the second floor contains the Eagles' quarters and on the third floor is a large hall, where it is planned to hold many social functions during the coming winter season.

Senator Lodge Dead

railed with remarkable vitality and regained consciousness for a few brief periods during which he spoke to his physician and the relatives at his bedside. He again relapsed into a coma, however, and his strength gradually ebbed away. Each bulletin issued from the hospital yesterday reported that he was losing ground and the end was momentarily expected. He died at 11.14 with his daughter-in-law, Mrs. John B. Lodge, his granddaughter, Miss Helena Lodge, two grandsons, John S. and Henry Cabot Lodge, 2nd, and his physician, Dr. John H. Cunningham, at his side.

Word of his death brought tribute from many places. Senator David I. Walsh, who shared with him the representation of Massachusetts in the upper house and a member of the democratic party, said: "Massachusetts has lost a statesman and a scholar who added more to her prestige than any other man in half a century."

"Dignified, accomplished, versatile and possessed of a prodigious fund of political and historical knowledge, he was one of the most outstanding public men in our time. His long experience in the public service and his studious habits of a lifetime made him a most desirable senator—one that any state might point to with just pride."

His outstanding public virtue was his Americanism. Again and again he insisted by his voice and vote that American prestige should never be lowered. "I shall always have pleasant memories of my association in the senate with Senator Lodge. Though we differed fundamentally in our political philosophy, we became as one through a spirit of co-operation for the best interests of the state we both had the honor to represent."

The body was removed from the hospital shortly after midnight and was taken to the home of Dr. William Sturgis Bigelow, where the funeral services will be held. Dr. Bigelow was a life-long friend of the senator and a fellow member of the class of 1871 at Harvard. Burial will be in the Lodge family lot at Mount Auburn cemetery, Cambridge.

Henry Cabot Lodge had served continuously in the United States senate since 1893, as republican leader since August, 1915, and was one of the most prominent members of his party for a generation. He was born May 12, 1850.

Statesman, publicist, author, lawyer and historian, Mr. Lodge's manifold activities made a wide impression on contemporaneous events. Chief promoter, perhaps, came to him as leader of the senate opposition to the League of Nations and the treaty of Versailles during 1915, 1919 and 1920.

As chairman of the senate foreign relations committee and republican floor leader, he led the contest with former President Wilson in the fight against ratification. He was the author of the "Lodge reservations" and was credited with a large part in molding the policy of the Harding administration against American entrance into the League.

He was born in leisure, but always worked. A principle laid down by him in early life was: "The first thing for a man of leisure to do, if he really wishes to count in his day and generation, is to avoid being an amateur." Although he apparently had no intention of practicing law, he worked hard and won a degree in that branch at Harvard, and then worked on a thesis on Anglo-Saxon land laws, which won him his Ph.D. In the three years that followed he was lecturer at Harvard on American history, and at the age of 30 was recognized as an authoritative historian. Among the score of books he wrote were biographies of Washington, Hamilton and Webster.

It was his theory that every man should "give of his leisure, more or less, to politics; for it is simply good citizenship for him to do so," and along with the historical researches he became interested in contemporary politics. His public career began with election to the Massachusetts house of representatives in 1879.

He was unsuccessful in his first attempt to go to Washington as a national legislator. In 1882 he was a candidate for the republican nomination for congressman and the contest was so close that 130 ballots were required to decide the nomination of his opponent by the congressional convention. In 1888, however, he was nominated and elected to the national house of representatives, where he served six years before his election to the senate.

His oratory was distinguished by his practice of sketching in a historical background and his facility in quoting apt historical incidents. In an interview in 1922 summing up his career, he said: "I have nothing to say about my opponents, for I have never made personal or abusive attacks on anyone opposed to me. It has always seemed to me that a man in public life stood more strongly if he stood on his own merits rather than on someone else's defects. I think I may say that I have done a great deal of difficult and rare

THE TRUTH

About Your Tax Rate and
About Your Gas Rate

THE present Mayor says he reduced your tax rate $1.40 per $1000 valuation. Mr. Ordinary Citizen, if you draw $1.40 each week from your savings account in the bank, to run your household for the week—it will take $1.40 less a week from your pay envelope—and only a stupid man would attempt to deceive himself that he was reducing household expenses by so doing. Here is what was done with your money in the city household, according to the City Auditor's records.

4 Days Before the Tax Rate Was Declared $171,000 Was Taken From "Prior Revenue Account" (Savings Dept. of the City) and Applied to Expenditures for the Current Year. $171,000—on a Total City Valuation of $136,492,851 Represents Just About $1.40 on the Tax Rate.

In a Word—The Savings Account of the City Was Used to Reduce Yearly Expenses.

There is the Truth

THE present Mayor on March 1st announced a reduction in the price of Gas, through the columns of the public press.

Through the office of Mayor John J. Donovan, the Lowell Gas Light Co. today announced a reduction in the price of gas, averaging 5 cents per 1000 feet effective on all bills on and after April 1 of the present year. This will mean a saving of about $50,000 a year to customers. The above announcement was made following several conferences between the mayor and officials of the company a few months ago and at which it was stated that the company would do everything possible towards a reduction.

Commenting upon the announcement of the Gas Company today, the mayor expressed great pleasure that the conference, which he had called, had resulted in a reduction to the public, and that the company has shown such co-operation with his office.

The company's announcement of a reduction was contained in the following letter to the mayor:

Courier-Citizen.
Lowell, Mass., Feb. 27, 1924.

Dear Sir: I am enclosing a circular which explains in detail the new schedule of rates which we discussed at our conference last week, and which will go into effect on April 1, 1924.

This schedule means an average reduction of 5 cents per 1000 cubic feet, and will amount to a saving of about $50,000 a year to our customers.

We have endeavored, in this circular, to explain the new rates so that they will be easily understood by all of our customers. The text of the circular will appear as an advertisement in the Lowell newspapers.

At the time of your very courteous request last fall, the directors were looking forward hopefully to reduction this spring. We are very glad that a reduction in operating expenses enables us to co-operate with you to the benefit of the people of Lowell.

We wish to express our thanks to you for your courtesy, and for the time which you have given to us in conference in this matter.

Very truly yours,
CHARLES R. TRICHARD, vice-president and general manager.

The mayor's comment on the receipt of the letter today was as follows:

"Commenting upon the communication received from the Lowell Gas Light Co. in which they advise that in compliance with a request made by the mayor's office several months ago and subsequent conferences with company officials in relation to the matter, they are naturally pleased that they intend to put in effect a new schedule of rates which, as they claim, will effect a saving of 30 cents per thousand cubic feet above a consumption of 500 cubic feet a month, and which amounts to an average reduction of a little more than 5 cents per 1000 cubic feet."

"While the new schedule of rates is perhaps a little difficult to analyze it undoubtedly effects the saving which is claimed by the company."

"I am pleased that the company has shown this spirit of co-operation with the mayor's office, in a reduction in the price of gas to the public."

The Department of Public Utilities in Sept. 19, 1924, following action by Corbett, ordered the Lowell Gas Light Co. to reduce the rates approved by the Mayor. Here are the facts:—

Cubic Feet	Old Rates	Rate Approved by the Mayor	Increase Approved by the Mayor	Rate Ordered by the Dept. of Public Utilities	Decrease Following Action by Corbett
100	.14	.60	.46	.50	.10
500	.70	1.16	.46	1.02	.14
1000	1.40	1.71	.31	1.59 1-2	.11 1-2

There is the Truth

Mr. Ordinary Citizen—If you believe what I have stated above is the truth, whether it is your Tax Bill or your Gas Bill, I am confident you will end such public conduct.

FEMININE FADS AND FANCIES

Hats Should Intensify Charm, Individuality in Headgear As Potent As Beauty, Says Designer

BY HORTENSE SAUNDERS

N.E.A. Service Writer
"No article of wearing apparel deserves more discriminating care in selection than the hat," says Henri Bendel, exclusive designer, "because no other accessory of dress can so make or mar the ensemble."

"A knowing hat has saved many an indifferent gown, but the wrong hat has ruined many an elegant and expensive one."

"Some women," he says, "have an instinct for hats that amounts to absolute pitch. They never strike a false note. Such a woman is Lady Diana Manners, the English beauty."

"She came into my shop the other morning and in a space of ten minutes she looked over at least 50 hats and rejected about 40 without so much as a trial, but of the ten or more she tried on, each was perfect. She knew without trying which ones would express her and which ones, possibly more stunning and extreme in style, would not."

"She knew just which ones would accentuate her eyes, hair and complexion without detracting from her personality. Every hat she selected intensified her charm instead of eliciting attention for itself. That is a secret of selecting a hat. It must be a part of you, like your hair, or your complexion—not something added."

Many of us, however, lack not only the loveliness of Lady Diana, but we lack her assurance and her instinct for dress—and also her pocketbook. So for the benefit of women who have not yet entirely mastered their type, this style mentor has many suggestions.

"Make your hat the crown of your loveliness. Select it in its relation to you, not because of its beauty or elegance in comparison with other hats or on some mannequin who is not your type."

"Select it not only in relation to your face, but to your figure as well. Make it conform to your lines as well as your individual color scheme. When selecting a model, bear in mind your defects as well as your good points and make your hat help camouflage features that aren't perfect."

"If you have a long, thin face, make it seem rounder and softer by wearing a shallow hat with curves and a graceful feather or bow. A square type of face unsoftened by curly or fluffy hair needs also irregular, graceful lines."

"Hard, severe hats should only be attempted by women with regular features and extreme chic who need no flattery."

"Turban and brimless effects are a very wise selection for the woman whose best feature is her eyes."

"By missing the trimming in the front of a hat a large nose is made much less conspicuous and a brim that projects draws attention from a weak chin. The effect of a hat must always be considered from the profile as carefully as from the front."

"Broad hats undoubtedly cut a woman's height and make a short neck seem much shorter. However, a large hat that is cut very short in the back and flattened slightly in the front may be worn by a woman with a short neck without hurting her lines."

"A woman should study the effect of color on her face most carefully. It is possible to attempt colors in millinery that she could not possibly wear in gowns, since the hair often offers the necessary contrast. Likewise, colors most becoming in gowns often cast an unbecoming shade over the face."

"The simpler the lines, the more style a hat has in these days, but simplicity and severity are often confused. It is possible to soften a line or blur an outline without in any way sacrificing chic."

"If you find a line in a hat that is essentially yours, do not forsake it for passing fads. Make it your own individual style and do not be afraid to duplicate its lines."

"Learn, like Lady Diana, to stick to your type and to have the courage of your own convictions. Individuality is as potent as beauty."

"HOW DO YOU DO?" SAID THE WHITE CROW

"Don't you worry," said Mister Pim Pim, the brownie man, to the Twins. "Why, it wouldn't matter if you were stuck on a mountain twice as high as this one. All I have to do is to call my million brownies and your troubles will be over."

"It's a good thing you came, that's all I've got to say," said Nancy. "Not that Nick and I couldn't get away if we wanted to with our magic shoes in everything, but the House-That-Jack-Built would be too heavy for us to carry. It would just stick up here on this old mountain top forever."

Mister Pim Pim took a whistle out of his pocket and blew and blew.

At that a horde of tiny men swarmed up the sides of the mountain, making funny noises as they came.

And they picked up the House-That-Jack-Built on their shoulders as though it were made of card-board, and shouting and singing, they bore it down a steep path with Nancy and Nick and Mister Pim Pim inside.

Then very gently they set it on the ground and scampered off to their hiding holes under the ground, that led to Browneland.

"But we aren't any better off than before," said Nick. "We're still miles away from Mother Goose Land, and we can't possibly take Jack's house back to him unless we can find Daddy Gander and his magic dustpan."

"Hold on, hold on," cried a hoarse voice down the chimney. "I've been watching the whole affair. I think that it is time for a wise head like mine to help you out."

The Twins and Mister Pim Pim ran outside, and there sitting on the roof was a big white crow.

"How do you do," said the white crow. "I've been sitting up here for a long time. Not for fifty years have I enjoyed anything as much as I did the ride down the mountain. Thanks a lot."

"Oh, are you magic?" asked Nick. "I never saw a white crow."

"No, sir, I'm not magic any more than a hard-boiled egg," laughed the crow.

"I'm a mountain crow, and lots of mountain crows are white. But since I'm of magic, did it ever occur to you that wisdom is worth a thousand times more than all the magic in the world? I've got a wise head, I have, and I use it."

"I have heard all your troubles and I've been thinking and thinking. I'm going to help you."

"Good!" declared Mister Pim Pim. "Let's hear it."

"Well, to begin with," said the crow. "Mother Goose is a very good friend of mine. She comes to the mountain top every day with her broom and sweeps my nest out and fills up for me."

"I'm going to tell her about everything and together we shall hunt up Yum Yum Land and Daddy Gander."

"But we're miles and miles from Yum Yum Land!" said Nick. "You'll never find it."

"Of course we will!" cried the crow. "The Yum Yum Landers are the greatest eaters in all the world. You can hear the people going 'yum yum' at their meals, miles away. It's very unmannerly, but true. But I'd better be off. Good-bye!"

"Good-bye!" called Mister Pim Pim and the Twins.

Amusement Notes

It is that the smallest detail is not being neglected.

"Trene" would be incomplete without its display of the latest and most fashionable hats and gowns for the comedy itself is mainly concerned with the romantic adventures of show girls thrusting triumphantly into fashionable society with the aid of an eccentric uncle meddlesome doing business under the name of Madame Lucy. It is a style show with comedy trimmings. For this reason Manager James has sent representatives to New York to secure the latest creations of the foremost designers. The result is a style display that will make "Trene" a charming spectacle as well as a genuine human comedy, set to delightful music. Miss Allan Desmond has the title role. The demand for seats is unprecedented. Phone 7540 now for tickets.

play "Volanda," is the attraction for the first part of the week at The Strand. It is a dramatization of Charles Major's romance of the same name. It is woven around the adventures and romance of Princess Mary of Burgundy, who, in the masquerade of a burlesque girl, Volanda, wins the love of Europe's most dashing prince. It is said to be the finest and most beautiful picture screened in years. Every element found in the making of a truly great picture is here—action, thrills, wonderful characterizations, tense scenes and a story that will hold interest from first to last. Miss Davies will be favorably remembered for her characterization of Pat in "Little Old New York," and in "When Knighthood Was in Flower." The supporting cast is in keeping with the high standard of the photoplay itself. In addition to this big feature, Directing Manager Torzan has arranged for the presentation of other features that will properly balance the program. Strand comfort and excellent musical numbers will help make the offering one that will compare favorably with the best. Don't miss it.

LOWELL'S HILTO

In "Hearts of Oak," which opens at Lowell's Hilto today and where it will be shown tomorrow and Wednesday, William Fox has created a motion picture version of one of the greatest stage melodramas ever written. Played for years with its author, James A. Herne, in the leading role, this stage play has been seen by millions all over America in cities and towns of every size. Its potent drama and heart-interest, according to critics, has been transferred to the screen in a manner that will appeal to picture-goers just as the stage masterpiece did two generations ago.

Robert Howarth, well known for his characterizations of suffering men, plays the leading role of Terry Dunne in the screen version. Theodore Von Eltz plays Ned Fairweather, his adopted son and Pauline Burke is seen as Christine, the adopted daughter of the mariner. Others in the splendid supporting cast are James Gordon, Francis Powers, Jennie Lee, Francis Ford and Frances Torgue. The picture was directed by John Ford, the man who was responsible for the direction of "The Iron Horse," which is now taking New York by storm.

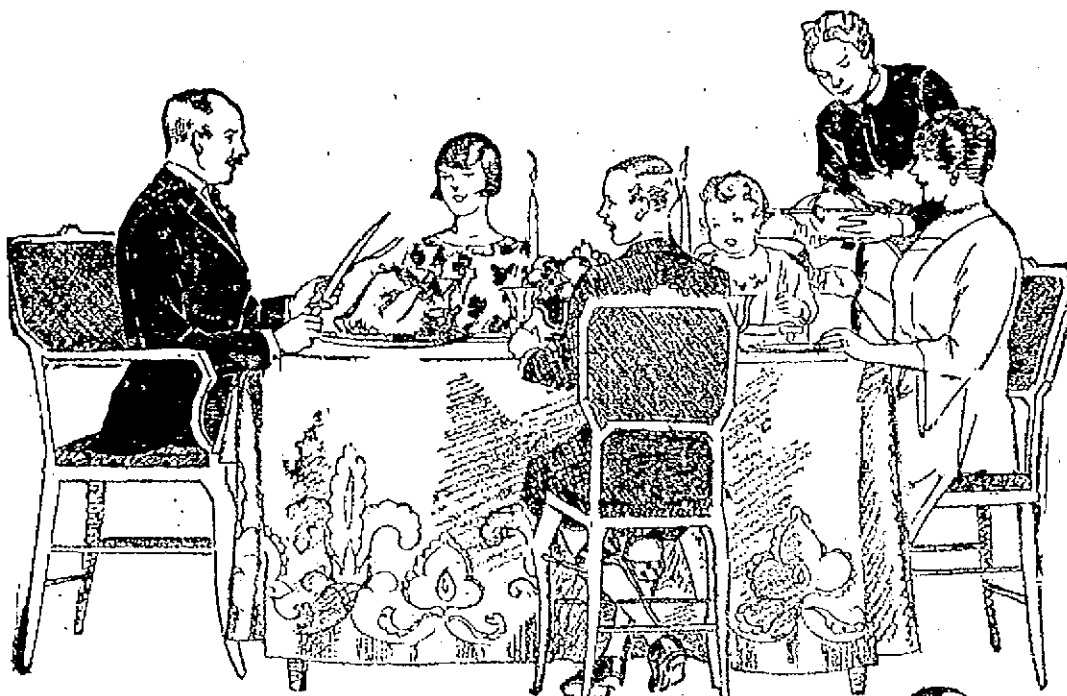

"Hearts of Oak" is a story of the New England coast and the Arctic wastes. Terry Dunne, a seaman, has adopted two children—a boy and a girl. He has seen them grow up, Christal to be a beautiful young woman and Ned to be a strong man of the sea. Terry realizes that his love for Christal has ripened into the love of a man and he tells her. Although she loves Ned, the young couple agree to sacrifice their love for the happiness of their benefactor. Ned, on the pretense of shipping to sea, leaves the coast town and goes to the bud. It is not until it is almost too late that Terry learns of the tragedy of his adopted children's love and the method he employs to right what he believes to be his wrong. makes a heart-stirring drama such as deserves the long success of "Hearts of Oak."

William Farnum in "The Gunfighter," a new chapter of H. C. Witwer's "Fight- ing Blood," a crackerjack comedy and the very latest issue of Fox News are included on this unusually fine picture bill.

BOOTS AND HER BUDDIES

ENGLISH UNACQUAINTED WITH GOOD OYSTERS

BY MILTON BRONNER, N.E.A. Service Writer
LONDON, Nov. 10.—The coming of the "R" month, with the consequent reappearance on the markets of oysters, has served to remind Britons that that famous low cost of living in England, as compared with America, is a thing of the past.

Indeed, if oysters were taken for a standard of comparison, the Briton could move to the United States and save money.

The average oyster, concerning whose qualities the Briton raves, would not excite an American at all. Whether they be labeled Colchester or Whitstable or what not, they all alike have the coppery taste that is so displeasing to the American spoiled by the delicious sea sweetness of the blue point.

And the price! For just ordinary oysters on the half shell eaten at an ordinary oyster bar, the sting is from three shillings and six pence to five shillings and six pence per dozen.

In other words, anywhere from 80 cents to a dollar and a quarter. And when the oyster-hungry Briton asks why this chusness, he is carefully told that some sort of disease, or parasite destroyed many oyster beds and

Children Are Ill if they won't play

Watch them carefully. You can forestall a serious ailment with a spoonful of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin

WHEN you see a child moping, avoiding companions and toys and play, look at its tongue and you will usually find it coated—a reliable symptom of constipation.

Forthwith give a teaspoonful of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin. It will operate in a few hours and the child will feel better again. If there is also feverishness, sneezing and sniffing give another teaspoonful the following night, to make sure that all danger is past.

It is perfectly unnecessary to give young children strong physics and cathartics as they are apt to set up a bad habit they will later find difficult to throw off.

A mild vegetable laxative like Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin meets all their requirements, and as it is pleasant to take you will find no difficulty administering it.

Experienced mothers learned its value long ago, for it has been on the market over thirty years, and Mrs. Josie Clark, Rocky, Okla., and Mr. Charles Lewis, Blackwood, N. J., attribute the general good health of their families to the prompt use of Syrup Pepsin at the right moment. They have it constantly in the house, knowing they can relieve over night constipation, biliousness, dyspepsia, flatulence, headache, sour stomach, fevers, colds and other disorders accompanying or due to a constipated condition of the intestines and bowels.

Free Sample Bottle Coupon

There are people who very slightly prefer to try a thing before they buy it. Let them clip this coupon, pin their name and address to it, and send it to the Syrup Pepsin Co., 518 Washington Street, Monticello, Illinois, and a free sample bottle of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin will be sent them postpaid by mail. Do not include postage. It is free.

You can buy a bottle at any drug store at an average cost of less than a cent a dose.

The ingredients of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin are very generally known, a vegetable compound of Egyptian senna with pepsin and agreeable aromatics, and wholly free of opiates and narcotics. The formula, which is on every package, was written by Dr. W. B. Caldwell, who practiced medicine for forty-seven years.

Get a bottle from your druggist today. Give it to any member of your family, young or old. If it does not come up to our promise your money will be refunded. It is our irrevocable guarantee.

DR. CALDWELL'S SYRUP PEPSIN The Family Laxative

Hence the rich alone eat the bivalves over here.

The French take the snail very seriously.

They have cultivated him to a point where they consider him a great delicacy.

So jealous were they of their supply of edible snails that they put on an export duty of 10 per cent, to keep him from crawling out of the country and landing in some body else's dinner plate.

However, recently the powers that be came to the conclusion that the snail farming business had progressed to such an extent that France could share her good thing with other people who were pinning for snails.

Hence the export duty was taken off. And a solemn decree to that effect was published in the official journal of France.

It was signed by the president of the republic, by the prime minister and by the ministers of agriculture, commerce and finance, all of whom have something to do with the well-being of his snailship.

It is often complained in New York that the subway company employs men from so many races that it is impossible to know when they are calling out particular stations, so much do they butcher the president's English.

Well, over here the bus combine employs native Cockneys, but sometimes when they speak it might as well be in Finnish or Hindustani.

The bus conductor barks out something that sounds like:—"The vulgar swear when cross."

What he was really trying to convey was "Foolishgar Square, Charing Cross."

"Litt-ill" means Ludgate Hill.

"Or-Blareh" means Marble Arch.

COMMUNION BREAKFAST

Exercises by Holy Name Society of the Sacred Heart Church

"Bob" Quinn, president of the Boston Red Sox, was the principal speaker at the communion breakfast exercises of the Holy Name society of the Sacred Heart church yesterday. About 600 men attended the 3 o'clock mass and received communion, and afterwards sat down to a banquet in the Sacred Heart school hall.

During the mass, the O.M.I. Cadet double quartet, consisting of six members of the school, rendered an impressive music. The soloist was Master William Lantagne, who sang "Mother of Christ." The sermon was delivered by Rev. Gerald Kenealy, O.M.I., his subject being from the gospel of the day: "Render to Caesar the things that are Caesar's, and to God, the things that are God's."

Other speakers at the breakfast, besides Mr. Quinn, were Rev. Denis A. Sullivan, O.M.I., pastor, and "Bob" Hart, big league umpire. Entertainment was furnished by John Murray, Gus McNamara, Fred Craig, John Higgins and Joseph Moriarty.

The committee in charge comprised President Kenealy, James Doyle, William Sadtler and Patrick Curry.

CATHOLIC CHURCH NEWS

Collections Next Sunday for the Lowell Charitable Bureau—Church Notes

In all the Catholic churches of the city yesterday announcement was made that on Sunday next at all the parishes collections will be taken up for the Lowell Catholic Charitable Bureau.

The work of the local bureau has been most extensive since its organization here with Mrs. Sara Hunt in charge. Of a charitable nature, the work done by the Catholic Charitable Bureau is in a field by itself and covers cases which only a bureau of its kind can cover.

The Immaculate Conception sodality and the Holy Name society of the Immaculate Conception church received holy communion at the 8 o'clock mass yesterday morning. On Tuesday evening at 8 o'clock a meeting of the Immaculate Conception sodality will be held. On Sunday next the third Order of St. Francis and the Junior branch of the Children of Mary will receive holy communion at the 8 o'clock mass.

The Children of Mary of St. Michael's parish met yesterday afternoon at 2 o'clock. At 2:30 o'clock St. Michael's parish held a meeting at which preparations were made for the annual Christmas sale. Another meeting of this organization will be held tomorrow evening at 7:30 o'clock. The Holy Name society met at 6:30 o'clock last evening. Tomorrow evening at 7 o'clock a meeting of the Immaculate Conception sodality will be held. This sodality and the Holy Name Society will receive holy communion next Sunday. Beginning yesterday and on every Sunday in the future, vespers services will be held at 6:30 o'clock in the evening instead of 3 o'clock in the afternoon which has been the custom in the past.

The Holy Name society of the Sacred Heart church received holy communion in a body at the 7:30 o'clock mass yesterday morning with over 1000 members in attendance. The altar was handsomely arranged with yellow chrysanthemums while in the sanctuary were hung the emblem of the society and the flag of the nation. Rev. Gerald Kenealy, O.M.I., preached the sermon which was most appropriate to the occasion. Following the mass, the members repaired to the school hall where a bountiful repast was served.

A fine musical program was given by the parish orchestra and numerous selections were given by members of the society and the Cadets. Among the speakers after the breakfast were Rev. Denis A. Sullivan, O.M.I., pastor of the church and "Bob" Quinn. Fr. Sullivan dwelt on the fine showing of patriotism and love of observance. Armistice day could be portrayed by any body of men. Mr. Quinn was most entertaining in a heart-to-heart talk on baseball matters and at the conclusion of his address he was accorded a rising vote of appreciation.

On Wednesday evening at 8:30 o'clock the Little Flower Guild will meet while at 7 o'clock in the evening the class of 1924 of the school will meet in the school hall. The O.M.I. Angela will meet at 6:30 o'clock on the same evening.

Yesterday was the regular communion Sunday for the married ladies of the Sacred Heart church. They received at the 7:30 o'clock mass. A meeting of the sodality will be held Wednesday evening at 7:30 o'clock while the Immaculate Conception sodality will meet on Thursday evening at the same hour.

A meeting of the women of St. Patrick's parish was held in O'Connell hall yesterday afternoon at which time primary plans were made for the annual parish reunion to be held on Monday evening next. The place has not as yet been chosen, although several public halls were mentioned as suitable for the celebration at yesterday's meeting. Rev. John J. McGarry, D.C.L., pastor of the parish and under whose direction the reunion will be given, has arranged an elaborate program and indications point to an even larger celebration than that of last year which was held in Memorial auditorium and at which the entire parish made merry.

The Holy Name society of St. Rita's church met last evening at 6:30 o'clock. The Blessed Virgin sodality will meet tomorrow evening at 7:30 o'clock. Beginning on Friday afternoon next at 3 o'clock public veneration of the relics of St. Rita will be held. Rev. Francis Spellman of Holy Cross cathedral will deliver the sermon at the St. Rita devotion at 7:30 o'clock next Friday evening. On Sunday next a retreat in honor of the Blessed Virgin will be opened for the women of the parish and will be given by Rev. Thomas P. McMahon, S.J.

The Angel Guardian society of St. Joseph's parish received holy communion at the 7:30 o'clock mass at St. Jean Baptiste church yesterday morning. A meeting of the society was held at 1:30 o'clock in the afternoon. Members of St. Anne's sodality received holy communion at the 6:30 o'clock mass at St. Louis church yesterday morning. There will be a meeting of the sodality tomorrow evening at 7 o'clock.

ANNUAL ARMISTICE BALL

State Officials to Attend

Legion Ball in Auditorium—
Tomorrow Evening

Commander Leo M. Harlow of Boston and Second Vice Commander William McGinnis of Lawrence, of the state organization of the American Legion, have accepted the invitation of Lowell Post to attend the annual Armistice ball, to be held in Memorial Auditorium tomorrow evening.

Chairman Dana Palmer of the guest committee is justly proud in his success in securing the promise of the state commander to attend the local ball. Mr. Harlow was the recipient of invitations from 150 posts throughout the state for similar affairs and could only accept four, Lowell being one of the cities chosen.

Among the other guests will be the members of the Grand Army of the Republic and their women folk, officers of the army, navy and marine corps, and delegations from the local branches of the United Spanish War Veterans, Disabled American Veterans, and Veterans of Foreign Wars. Mayor Donovan will represent the city and the trustees of the Auditorium have accepted an invitation to attend.

A concert by a 15-piece orchestra will open the ball at 8 o'clock and will continue for an hour. At 9 o'clock the grand march will be started and general dancing will follow, with special numbers by the Braggiotti sisters of Boston at intervals during the evening. The Legion tribute to departed members will be given at 11 o'clock.

It is planned to give returns of the local primary election from the stage between dance numbers during the evening so that those in attendance will be kept in touch with the trend of the election while the ball is in progress.

Admission tickets to the balcony will be sold at the main entrance, only and admittance to the balcony will be direct from Trophy hall, so that persons on their way to the balcony will not have to pass through the promenade.

Chief Aid Donald R. MacIntyre, D.S.C., will have for his assistants: Fred A. Estes, Charles Noonan, George A. McCarthy, Thomas B. Higgins, Hon. John J. Donovan, James J. Powers, George Robertson, Charles A. Stevens, James P. O'Donoghue, Leo A. Mollahan, Daniel P. Brennan, George M. Walsh, Percy J. Wilson, Stephen Kearney, Michael H. Harrington, J. HOPEFUL OF A NEW CURE

FOR DISEASE

BY ROY J. GIBBONS
N.E.A. Service Writer
CHICAGO, Nov. 10.—Dread cancer is to be laid low by radio.

So predicts Dr. L. D. Rogers, prominent Chicago physician-scientist.

He backs up his claim with a little weird-looking machine.

This device, says the doctor, can detect the electrical waves emanated by every cancerous growth.

In Dr. Rogers' opinion a cancer is a miniature broadcasting station. Its sending power is a microscopically compared with the wave length of real stations.

"The cancer wave is only six millimeters, or about a quarter of an inch long," Dr. Rogers points out.

"These waves move at the rate of 50,000,000,000 per second."

The cancer-detecting radio consists of two pieces. One part tunes in on the minute waves indicating the presence or absence of cancer. The other measures the amplitude of the disease and indicates its growth.

Co-inventor of the device with the physician is F. C. Mills, Chicago engineer.

Dr. Rogers believes that his experiments may eventually lead to harnessing the delicate currents within the body for accurate diagnosis of ailments that now need the surgeon's knife for discovery.

MAN INJURED IN
AUTO ACCIDENT

One unknown man was struck and slightly injured, and two others barely escaped injury in Gorham street, at 3:40 o'clock yesterday afternoon, when an automobile owned by Gertrude Smith and driven by Paul F. Smith of 105 Pleasant street, jumped the sidewalk and crashed into the fence at the county court house. The injured man refused to give his name or accept hospital treatment. A scratch on his nose was the only visible injury.

The accident occurred at the police station, when he swerved to the right at the courthouse to avoid hitting another machine which suddenly appeared in Gorham street from Elm.

Senator Lodge Dead

responsible public work. On that public work and on that record I am content to stand."

Mr. Lodge from the outset of his public career was an enthusiastic republican and an intense patriot. He was honored often by his party. An ambition to be chairman of the senate foreign relations committee, on which he served for many years, was realized when the republicans regained control of the senate in 1910. He then also was chosen majority leader, having served the republican minority previously as floor leader.

Twice Senator Lodge was temporary and permanent chairman of republican national conventions—at Philadelphia in 1900 and at Chicago in 1920. Former President Roosevelt, a lifelong friend, urged Mr. Lodge's nomination for the 1916, when Mr. Roosevelt declined the progressive party's nomination. As chairman of the 1920 republican convention, Senator Lodge was prominent in conferences which led to President Harding's nomination.

In addition to conflicts with partisan opponents, Senator Lodge had several inter-party conflicts.

He was severely criticized by independently inclined members of his own party in 1884, when, on his return from the republican national convention at which he had joined with other members of the Massachusetts delegation in strenuously opposing the nomination of James G. Blaine for president, he announced that he would give his support to Blaine in his campaign for election.

As a member of the committee on resolutions at the republican national convention in 1896, he wrote the words which committed the party to international imperialism. Immediately after this convention, Senator William B. Chandler of New Hampshire announced that he would give $100 to whoever could prove that he was the author of this plank. It was not until 1902 that the proof was disclosed, when Senator Barreter, who had been chairman of the resolutions committee, found the original draft of the platform with the interlined amendment to the imperialism plank consisting of the words "which we pledge ourselves to promote" written on a telegraph blank in Mr. Lodge's handwriting. Senator Chandler thereupon arranged a dinner at which he presented Mr. Lodge a silver cigar box valued at $100.

Mr. Lodge's seat in the senate was not seriously threatened until the campaign of 1910, when rival candidates presented themselves for the republican nomination and waged a bitter contest against him. In that campaign he was charged with having built up a powerful machine to control party affairs in Massachusetts. He secured the nomination, however, and was re-elected by a margin of six votes in the Massachusetts legislature. He was re-elected in 1916 for a term expiring in 1923.

Facing re-election in 1922 he was faced with determined opposition within and without his party. In the primary campaign Joseph Walker, a former speaker of the Massachusetts house of representatives and a former progressive, was a candidate for the republican nomination for senator. Mr. Walker attacked Senator Lodge as being reactionary and as not properly representing his party, but when the primary votes were counted it was found that the senator was an easy winner. To oppose him in the election the democrats nominated William A. Gaston, Boston lawyer and banker, who made a vigorous campaign. Mr. Walker announced his support of Gaston and certain other republicans came out for the prohibition candidate, John A. Nicholls. The vote ran close throughout the state and although Senator Lodge's re-election was assured by the return, it was not until after a recount of the ballot, demanded by both parties, that his plurality over Gaston was fixed at 7356.

Soon after leaving college, Mr. Lodge formed a close friendship with Theodore Roosevelt. This was fostered by their joint interest in history and politics, and during Mr. Roosevelt's administration as president, Senator Lodge was invariably a factor in party councils and politics.

The establishment of international copyright, the regulation of immigration, the reform of the consular service and numerous other items of notable legislation were largely credited to him. As a member of the foreign relations committee, it fell to him to take charge in the senate of the second Hay-Pauncefote treaty, and of the treaty establishing the Alaskan tribunal, a tribunal of which he became a member. For years he was a member of the senate finance and naval committees, active in framing tariff legislation and naval as well as international policies. The navy was his special interest.

Mr. Lodge traveled often abroad and had the friendship of many prominent European statesmen. He spoke French fluently and was a student of its art and literature, his library being filled with books of Napoleon and French volumes. He also had one of the largest collections of Roosevelt letters.

Senator Lodge's father, John Ellerton Lodge, was engaged in trade with China and owned many ships. The senator once remarked: "I never went to sea but I knew every part of a ship." His great grandfather, George Cabot, was a senator from Massachusetts from 1791 to 1796 and was appointed by President Adams as secretary of the navy when that department was created, but declined the appointment.

Senator Lodge made his home in a picturesque mansion on the cliffs of Nahant jutting out into Massachusetts bay. There as a boy he became an expert swimmer and master of a sail boat with a retired fisherman as instructor and companion. During his service in congress he spent his summer vacations usually at his Nahant home and, as he was an ardent horseman, was often seen entering along the beaches and through the villages. In his later years he found horseback riding too strenuous and got most of his exercise in walking, although he continued to enjoy an occasional swim in the ocean. He was passionately fond of the sea, which he once said "conveys most nearly the idea of infinite space."

For many years Senator Lodge served as moderator at the Nahant town meetings and in August, 1913, he made a tour of his home in Washington to preside at a special town meeting called to consider the question of building a new schoolhouse. A fellow townsman wrote: "His attitude in town meetings is liked by the townspeople. His opinions are not always approved, but he is interested in all details, however small, and is considerate of other's opinions."

In September, 1922, the Nahant townspeople, irrespective of party, tendered him a reception and presented him a silver plate inscribed as "a token of affection and esteem."

Mr. Lodge's wife, who was Anna Cabot Mills, daughter of Rear Admiral Charles H. Davis of the United States navy, died in 1915. He had two sons, George Cabot Lodge who died soon after his graduation from Harvard, and John E. Lodge, a Boston lawyer; and one daughter, Mrs. Augustus P. Gardner, widow of the late Congressman Chamber of Massachusetts.

THIRD SENATOR TO DIE WITHIN FEW WEEKS

WASHINGTON, Nov. 10 (By the Associated Press)—The passing of Senator Lodge, just as his party was preparing to harvest the fruits of a sweeping victory at the polls, surrounds the question of leadership in the senate with new and unusual considerations.

A veteran of the old guard, adamant against the policies of the La Follette insurgents on the one hand and unable to accept some of the proposals of the republican administration on the other, the Massachusetts patriot more than once had found his title as republican floor leader somewhat of an anomaly.

Now that the powerful equation of his personal influence has been removed from the problem, party chiefs face the task of deciding what new alignment can be effected to fill the gap and make for party solidarity. In the determination of this question President Coolidge undoubtedly will have an opportunity to wield the dominant power of party leadership conferred on him by Tuesday's election. If he cares to give it, his attendance will be a powerful factor in deciding whether the old guard is to remain as the directing force of the senate, or the seniority is to be cast aside and some new leader lifted from the ranks to a position of command.

This question assumes a still greater significance when it is considered that the new congress, which meets next year, will see a substantial increase in republican senate strength, bringing into the situation new and untried quantities. In view of the changes to take place as a result of the election, just held, and the close balance in the present congress, any permanent reorganization on the republican side may be delayed for some months, and a temporary leader designated to act during the next winter session.

Should an emergency adjustment of the senate situation be attempted, it is probable that Senator Warren of Wyoming, or Senator Curtis of Kansas, will become floor leader. But if there is to be a new deal all around those to be considered probably will include Woodworth of New York, Moses, New Hampshire, Wilson, Indiana, and Reed of Pennsylvania.

Senator Lodge is the third prominent senate republican to die within recent weeks. As a result the republican party finds itself with a membership of only 50 in the present senate, or one less than a majority, unless Governor Cabot Lodge of Massachusetts is successor to the venerable legislator before congress reconvenes on December 1.

Although the vacancy caused by the death of Senator Colt of Rhode Island, was filled in Tuesday's election, that resulting from the death more recently of Senator Rogers of Connecticut, will not be filled until December 16 when a special election will be held. As this is more than two weeks after the time set for the convening of congress, the senate will meet without a full membership.

To Develop Difficulties In the face of that situation, with but 48 republican members, not all of whom are classed as strict organization men, the problem is expected to develop difficulties which will require expert handling if the republicans are to continue in the senate as the dominant party in that branch of congress.

Under the rule of seniority, Senator Borah of Idaho, ranking republican member, would succeed to the chairmanship of the foreign relations committee, a post which it is believed he would accept although it would mean his surrender of the chairmanship of the education and labor committee and abandonment of any idea of assuming the chairmanship of the judiciary committee, for which he is also directly in line through the death of Senator Brandegee, under the practice which restricts a senator to one major committee chairmanship.

To Select Party Leader The procedure for selecting a party floor leader is not so clearly defined, the seniority rule not always being followed. If it should be, the selection in this case would fall upon Senator Warren of Wyoming. If, as is probable, the choice would fall upon Senator Curtis of Kansas, the republican whip and assistant floor leader.

Some friends of Senator Warren are of the opinion that he would not accept the leadership and predict that Senator Curtis will be selected. Senator Curtis has been active for some time in the actual leadership of the republican forces in the senate as have Senators Watson of Indiana, Reed of Pennsylvania, and others, due to Senator Lodge having voluntarily relinquished a measure of actual control to them and devoted his attention for the past year or two more exclusively to the foreign relations and naval affairs committees.

The lessening of activities by Senator Lodge was believed by his friends to have been due primarily to advancing age. At the same time the result of his campaign for re-election in 1922, was regarded as a factor in his decision to relinquish to a degree the reins of actual senate leadership.

Small Vote in 1922 Severe Blow Long excelling a dominating position in Massachusetts politics, he was re-elected in 1922 by a margin of only 7356 votes whereas in 1920, his last previous appearance before the electorate, he led the entire ticket for delegate-at-large to the republican national convention at Chicago.

The result of the 1922 vote he was said to have felt keenly. But if the vital fire was diminishing in the field of state and national politics, it showed no diminution in the realm of foreign affairs. This was notably true in what proved to be his last outstanding utterance when he brought his powers into full play in the Japanese exclusion debate last spring, during consideration of the immigration bill.

It was he who, on the open floor of the senate, termed the "grave consequences" phrase in the note of Ambassador Hanihara bearing upon the exclusion question a "velled threat" in a speech which was regarded in the light of subsequent events as leading directly to the writing into the immigration bill of a strict exclusion provision and the creating of a delicate situation with Japan.

Opposed President Coolidge In so constructing the letter of the ambassador, Senator Lodge ran counter to the interpretation placed upon it by Secretary Hughes, and in supporting an immediate, strict, Oriental exclusion policy by legislation, he found himself in opposition to President Coolidge. It was not the first time, however, that he had found himself out of agreement with Mr. Coolidge in state, national or international policies. In Massachusetts state politics Mr. Coolidge was frequently aligned with the Murray Crane wing of the party as opposed to that dominated by Senator Lodge, and in national politics they had found themselves nobly at loggerheads on the advisability of granting a soldier bonus. In the latter case Senator Lodge voted for the bonus, both on initial passage and on re-passage over the president's veto, although his course was understood to have been dictated to some extent by pledges he had made to support the bonus during his campaign for re-election more than a year before Mr. Coolidge came to the presidency.

Although not so markedly opposing the president's policy with reference to American adherence to the permanent court of international justice, Senator Lodge also was generally regarded as being in disagreement on that question. It never came to a direct issue, however.

Notwithstanding these divergences, Senator Lodge proclaimed his support of President Coolidge in general policies and for renomination and election, and attended the republican national convention at Cleveland last June, participating in demonstrations for the president. His role there, however, was a minor one, quite in contrast with the part he had played in previous years, including 1920, when he was chairman of the republican national convention at Chicago.

At that time he was criticized by many friends of Mr. Coolidge for what they regarded as a lukewarmness in preaching open opposition to the candidacy of the then Governor Coolidge for the nomination for the vice-presidency. Four years later, with other leaders in control, his own state delegation to the convention refused from giving him official recognition. The senator, however, did not complain but left for his home at Nahant, intending to participate in the presidential campaign this year.

BELLS TOLL AT 10 MINUTE INTERVALS

NAHANT, Nov. 10.—The bells of public buildings in this town, home of Henry Cabot Lodge since boyhood, will ring at ten minute intervals today, and tonight the board of selectmen will meet to appoint a town representative to attend the funeral. News of the death of Senator Lodge reached Nahant late last night and was at once communicated to town officials.

Although he usually spent his winters in Boston when not in Washington or abroad, Senator Lodge was always regarded as a resident of Nahant and the Lodge mansion at East Point was for many years one of the town's centers of interest. It was from Nahant that Senator Lodge first entered public life, winning an election as representative in the general court in 1872, when other politicians would have given little for his chances. He told later in life, the attitude with which he approached politics in those days.

Not Requested to Run "When I came to the conclusion I would like to hold office, I did not want to be requested by my friends," he said. "I went out and told the men who had much to do with elections that I would like to run."

In the same attitude Henry Cabot Lodge decided in 1884 that he would like to go as a delegate to the republican national convention, and he was chosen. At that time he opposed the nomination of James G. Blaine. In his early political career he met with a reverse when he was defeated for the state senate, but afterward when he decided in turn that he wished to become congressman and senator he carried out his ambition.

During his stays at Nahant Senator Lodge was frequently seen on horseback, riding along the streets of the town or across to Lynn. On such excursions, kept up until his illness last summer, he was always accompanied. He loved the sport and often said that conversation spoiled horseback riding for him. Residents of Nahant said today that access to the lodge home at East Point was never difficult except when important conferences were in progress there.

Was Town Moderator An honorary trustee Senator Lodge served the town for a number of years, and as moderator he figured in Nahant affairs for nearly a quarter of a century. Except on the occasion when the League of Nations discussion was in progress in the senate and this year when the condition of his health prevented, he had not permitted any other interest to interfere with his duties as moderator in presiding at the annual town meeting.

From his position as leader of the United States senate and one of the outstanding figures in national affairs, he would return to his home town and preside at discussions regarding the small routine of a little New England town. The town meeting frequently was turned into a home-coming reception for Nahant's distinguished citizen.

FIFTH ARREST IN WRENTHAM CASE

James A. Weeks of North
Randolph Arraigned on Charge of Murder

Held Without Bail in Connection With Bank Holdup and Shooting

WALPOLE, Mass., Nov. 10.—James A. Weeks of North Randolph, the fifth person to be arrested in connection with the attempt on the National Bank of Wrentham, November 5, in which James E. Carpenter, aged cashier of the bank, was shot and fatally wounded, was arraigned in district court here today on a charge of murder. He was held without bail for hearing November 15, when he will appear in Franklin court with the four others previously arrested.

Weeks, said by the police of North Randolph to be a run-runner, and describing himself on his business cards as a "super cargo" was arrested near his home in an isolated section of North Randolph late last night. He had been living with a neighbor for some weeks and it was there he was captured by state and local police officers.

The police charge that Weeks was one of the men who entered the bank and who failed to obtain any booty when their leader shot Carpenter as the aged man reached for the burglar alarm. The others held are Alfred Bedard of Pawtucket, R. I., who has been identified as the driver of the automobile in which the bandits fled from the scene of the hold-up; Manuel Pacheco and James Mingo of New Bedford, and Fred Bedard, alias Celestino Madefros of Seekonk. The three last named were captured in a raid on a lodging house in Friday. All five are held at Dedham jail.

Holloway explained his movements at Whitefield in connection with the killing of the house of Emily Dube, which led to suspicion attaching to him, as activities in connection with his plans to come here. Dube was the last person to see Travers alive. An attempt was made to break into his house Friday night, and he expressed belief that someone who had a hand in the killing of Travers wanted to silence him.

Victims of Post Play
WHITEFIELD, N. H., Nov. 10.—County Solicitor Matthew J. Ryan today repeated unflinching assertions that James J. Travers, past grand knight of the Whitefield council, Knights of Columbus, was killed, instead of meeting an accidental death or committing suicide, in the early morning of Nov. 5. He said this was now practically known.

The arrest of Carl Holloway at Lynn, Mass., at his request was to be in connection with the inquiry and the county solicitor said he was not yet prepared to say what part Holloway is alleged to have taken in the killing.

COST OF FEEDING UNITED STATES SOLDIERS

WASHINGTON, Nov. 10.—It cost the United States slightly more than ten cents a meal for its soldiers during the fiscal year ended last June 30. The daily cost of feeding soldiers, it was disclosed in the annual report of the quartermaster-general made public today, amounted to only 31.65 cents for each man.

per and very neatly printed. The annual convention was held September 16, 17, 18 and 19, last, and was attended by members and representatives from every Atlantic seaboard state and the District of Columbia.

Special reports were made covering progress in the development of such inland waters as the Cape Cod canal, New York rivers and canals, New Jersey canals, the Raritan river and bay, Newark bay, Delaware river, Chesapeake and connecting canals, Norfolk harbor, Lake Drummond (Disposal Swamp canal), the Norfolk-Beaufort waterway and very many other inland waterway improvements and enlargements in the campaign to bring prosperity to cities and towns lying away from, but not very far from Atlantic seaports.

The Atlantic Deepwater Ways association, on Page 7 of its official report just received by Lowell chamber of commerce, devotes numerous paragraphs to New England inland waterways and suggested improvements including the deepening of streams to allow commercial traffic to use the water transportation routes from seaports to inland cities. The article covering "New England Rivers and Canals," says in part:

"We recommend that such an extension would serve the important industrial areas along the Merrimack river, the Piscataqua and the Kennebec rivers.

"The Merrimack river offers a favorable opportunity for the extension of navigation from the sea to an important group of industrial cities. "We express the hope that a satisfactory and practical plan may be adopted for co-operation between the federal government and the state of Massachusetts, for consummating this important improvement."

Recommending further in its report regarding the values of inland waterway extensions like the proposed improvement and deepening of the ancient Merrimack stream, the waterways association advises as follows: "In the prosecution of this work of public service, the members of this association have endeavored to keep in mind that the purposes of the intracoastal waterway are not only to afford facilities of navigation, but the assurance that it will be actually used in water transportation. That a mere navigable channel does not of necessity mean it will be used in commerce is truism. But we have an abiding faith that the necessary volume of products exists and that the demands of industry and consumption require a large movement between the north and the south and the interior sections, and that it only remains to provide the expedient necessary to attract a large commerce for all intracoastal waterway projects now under contemplation.

"There must be established an interchange of traffic between boat lines and rail lines. There must be complete co-ordination between railways, waterways and highways. The time has arrived when the advocates of water transportation and the owners of the lines should insist in being placed upon a parity with the railroads. A boat line is entitled to the same degree and equality of treatment in the interchange of traffic with rail lines as are the different rail lines with each other. "Under the present policy, the construction of inland river terminals rests with the localities along the way, the community, whether it be a city, town or boat-landing on the river, should have its terminal sufficient to answer the demands of the particular community. These terminals should be financed, owned and regulated by the public and dedicated to a finer and more efficient system of general transportation."

Drouth Records Broken

waters coming down stream, for September raised the upper reaches of the river and Locks and Canals proprietors were not worrying. The situation today finds the river unable to keep filled the basin where the power gates at the dam control the water used by the mill dependent upon this service for daily machinery operations. Many industries of the textiles are now equipped with auxiliary steam power service, which has been used steadily during the past summer months to attract a large volume of business in preference to water power. The extreme low condition of the river depth today has made it necessary for numerous industries formerly depending in part upon the Locks and Canals service, to change over to steam or electric power, according to emergency equipment installation needed in individual cases. While Locks and Canals proprietors would not be able today to supply the city's power manufacturing needs, if called upon by all regular customers, the low waters in the Merrimack have not caused any shutdowns in local industrial production plants as yet. The present low waters have never been exceeded on a previous November 10, it was said at the Broadway offices of the proprietors, this noon. The lowest river height registrations occur during the mid-summer months, as a rule, and have shown such meagre volumes of water coming down stream to Lowell as Lowell as 1975 cubic feet a second. In one instance many years ago, the registration was but 1650. The abnormally low volume coming down river today promises to dwindle daily, river watchers say, unless rain storms come soon. If the weather turns extremely cold and no more rains come, Lowell textile mills may have to depend upon even more auxiliary steam or electric power service in the weeks to come. The highest readings in volume of water moving over Pawtucket dam in the "flood" seasons of the year, have reached the 500 cubic feet figure. Locks and Canals statistics show.

FOR THE BENEFIT OF DISABLED VETERANS

"National Forget-Me-Not Day" was successfully observed Saturday by Lowell Chapter No. 5, Disabled American Veterans of the World war, whose street collection of funds by young lady canvassers to the number of seventy-five, broke all records made in previous campaigns for relief of wounded and sick comrades. Commander William Geary reported this morning that the total receipts covered from the little boxes filled by Lowell men and women in sympathy with the patriotic relief cause, amounted to slightly more than $10. It was the largest sum ever contributed to a D. A. V. of the W. A. campaign of similar nature in Lowell, and the war veterans desire to thank the public at large for so generously contributing to the fund.

Miss Hazel Kennedy, 17 years old, of 113 Vermont avenue, won first honors as an energetic collector of funds, passing all competitors with a remarkable collection of $110.05. The girl had a patrol district in the vicinity of Fairburn's market, in the square, and remained on loyal duty to the cause of her heart's desire from early morning until late at night.

About 60 per cent of the population of western Canada resides on farms.
